Need of Changes on the Central Verment Railroad in Barre Is to Be Shown and Action

The first public move on the part of the people of Barre to secure a new Central Vermont railroad station and also to secure better train accommodations or this railway was set on foot last night, when a petition to the state board of railroad commissioners was given en out by State's Attorney Jackson for signatures. About two hundred signatures were secured last night. Opportunicy is given all citizens to sign the petition during the next few days, as copies will be left at The Times office and at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

The manner of proceeding will be to petition the state commissioners to call 4 hearing to decide upon the neces-sity for the station and service. If the commissioners decide that there is need for the changes proposed, then they shall issue an order to that effect. The Law.

The law under which the proceedings will be brought is an amendment enacted by the legislature of 1902, as fol-"When in the judgment of the com-missioners, after investigation and hearjudge and probably W.
